SCRELE

PART.01

Warming- up

Please read the following Chinese characters carefully. Do they have anything in common in each group? Does the same phenomenon exist in the English language?

钊;	剥;	刻
侧;	倒;	例
迷;	咪;	眯
扞;	珉;	岷

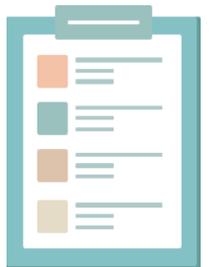

SCRELE

Conclusion

- In Chinese, if we add one or two parts to a certain part we can form a new word. This phenomenon also exists in English.

PART 02

Input

I). Please read the following sentences and pay special attention to the formation of the underlined words.

- 1. Mrs. Peabody, the English teacher, gave the class a writing assignment.

- teacher = teach + -er

- assignment = assign + -ment

- 2. "Be as creative as you can. But, " the teacher added, " make sure you use proper spelling and grammar. "

- creative = create - e + -ive

- 3. He' d actually been happy to get back to school.

- actually = actual + -ly

- 4. English was his favorite class.

- favorite = favor + -ite

- 5. Almost everyone in class simply wrote an essay about his or her summer vacation...

- simply = simple - e + -y

- 6. " But, " the teacher continued, " one of you had the courage to be as imaginative as I asked you to be. ..."

- imaginative = imagine - e + -ative

Conclusion

- -er; -ment; -ive; -ly; -ite are common suffixes. A suffix is a letter or a group of letters added at the end of a word to make a new word. A suffix usually changes the part of speech of the root word.
