2. As a psychologist, my tendency is to be empathic.
3. I clearly empathise with the people who live in those neighbourhoods because I grew up in one of them.

Which of the following situations prompt more people to reach for their wallets and donate? Why?

A

A homeless man caused by Wenchuan earthquake.

A homeless man due to alcohol use.

If you believe that a homeless man is responsible for his own misfortune and you are pretty sure he could have made better choices than he did, then you will probably lean towards not giving any money.”

Which of the following people is the most likely to reach out to the homeless man due to alcohol use, while which the least?

A

A teenager with a strong sense of right and wrong.

B

An old lady who cries every time she watches a sad movie.

C

A middle-aged man who often recalls his having been addicted to alcohol when he was young.

The teenager in Situation A is the least likely to reach out because of his/her sense of justice. The people in Situation B and C might donate because according to Paragraph 4, “if you can relate to the pain that would cause him to slip into the hopeless situation, then you would probably lean towards empathic giving.”

Among all the factors we take into account before donating, what prompts us to reach out according to the research?

The research confirms the immense power of empathy.

A. reach out B. reach for C. within reach D. beyond reach E. relate to F. be related to G. a sense of justice H. be responsible for I. slip into J. lean towards
