Written in March

William Wordsworth

William Wordsworth was one of the founders of English Romanticism. He was called a poet of nature, and he was concerned with the human relationship to nature. In his view, all good poetry is a spontaneous overflow of powerful feelings.

William Wordsworth
(1770 – 1850)

While Resting on the Bridge at the Foot of Brother's Water

William Wordsworth

The cock is crowing,
The stream is flowing,
The small birds twitter,
The lake doth glitter,
The green field sleeps in the sun;
The oldest and youngest
Are at work with the strongest;
The cattle are grazing,
Their heads never raising;
There are forty feeding like one!

Like an army defeated
The snow hath retreated,
And now doth fare ill
On the top of the bare hill;
The ploughboy is whooping – anon – anon,
There's joy in the mountains;
There's life in the fountains;
Small clouds are sailing,
Blue sky prevailing;
The rain is over and gone!

In the eyes of William Wordsworth, March is beautiful.

He saw snow melting and blue sky prevailing.

He heard crowing cock and twittering birds.

He felt March is a season of life and hope.

The early spring is in the air,
I am wandering on the square,
The long freezing winter finally waved away,
I feel totally refreshed on the day,
Kids are chasing after one another,
Leaving far behind their mother,
Pets are running loose in the park,
Everything come alive from the dark.
