the cause; the very beginning

- I really enjoyed my visit to Stonehenge last year. Our guide gave us some really interesting information about this historic site whose origin is still unknown to us. It is a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and it is frequently referred to as a British cultural icon. Archaeologists believe that its construction began in around 3,000 BCE, and tremendous planning and organization of labour were involved.

devote .. to

- Some rocks are found to have been from Wales. It's pretty incredible that those primitive people got them all the way to South England, since most stones are enormous and weigh up to 50 tons. It is still unknown why they devoted so much time and energy to this huge monument. Theories about why Stonehenge was built range from it being a cemetery to a site of healing, to an observatory to mark the seasons.

Topic-related words and phrases

Jimmy – a new-comer in your class.

- Stonehenge was found to be built in the form of a circle and in line with some star positions to help ancient people calculate the movements of the sun and the moon with some long-lost wisdom. All in all, it's quite impressive.
