Objectives

By the end of this class, you will be able to...

- identify the sentence patterns that characterize a speech's opening remark, signposting of points, and closing sentences;

- employ appropriate sentence patterns in speaking;

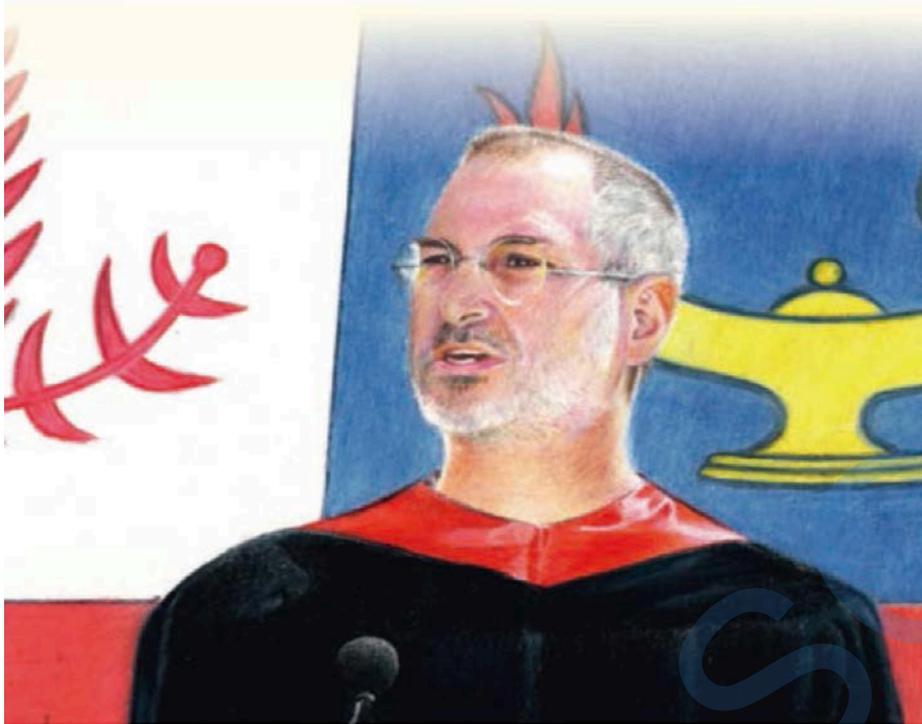

- understand the words, phrasal verbs, set phrases, and expressions in the context and practice using them;

- explore the effectiveness of parallelism and employ the rhetoric device in writing a recipe for success

Reading B

Vocabulary Focus

Stay Hungry
Stay Foolish

Getting Started

Read aloud the first and last paragraph of the speech.

Retell the life stories and restate the author's points.

SCRELE

Studying sentence patterns

What makes the opening remarks and closing sentences impressive?

- I'm honoured to be with you today for...
- And now, as you graduate to begin anew, I wish that for you.

Are there other possible versions that can start a speech successfully?

- I'm grateful for this opportunity to ... /I'd like to thank you for inviting me...(acknowledge the occasion)
- I'd like to thank you for coming. (show welcome)
- I'm going to speech about something that is of great importance to use. (mention the significance)
- Over the next ten minutes you are going to hear about something that will change your life...(arouse interest)

Read opening lines of J. K. Rowling's commencement speech at Harvard in 2008.
What makes them impressive?

- Addressing the audience: and, above all, graduates.
- Using humor by adding a personal touch:... have made me lose weight. A win-win situation!
- Using a clever metaphor: the world's largest Gryffindor reunion.

Are there other possible versions that can bring a speech to an impressive end?

- I'd like to finish by...
- I hope I have given you a clear picture of...
- That was all I had to say on..
- I'm afraid that the clock is against us. So...
- You have been a great audience. Than you.

- Read the closing lines of Rowling's speech. Are there similarities compared with Job's speech?
- Quotation: As is a tale, so is life: not how long it is, but how good it is, is what matters.
- Extending good wishes: I wish you all very good lives.
- Expressing gratitude: Thank-you very much.

Studying sentence patterns

What makes the points stated forceful?

- So you have to trust that...
- I'm convinced that...
- If you haven't found..., keep ... Don't...
- Having lived through it, I can now say this to you....

- Are there other possible versions that can naturally present a personal opinion in speaking?
- As far as I am concerned
- For my part
- Personally speaking
- As I see it
- It seems to me that
- If you ask me
