Jim: Hello. My name's Jim Lee. I am a big racing fan. My house is safe and sweet, but it's a bit plain for a racing fan like me.

Host: We can help to change. What's your house like?

Jim: Well, it's a two-bedroom bungalow with a kitchen and a dining room.

Host: How big is the kitchen?

Jim: It's sixteen square metres.

Host: It's big, I think. We can make it look like a garage. What about the dining room?

Jim: It is next to the kitchen. There is a large table, some chairs and a sofa in it.

Host: I see. We will make some new chairs with used tires. And your sofa will be like a trunk.

Jim: That's cool! How much should I pay?

Mr Lee: I don't care about these. The city offers restaurants, theatres and cinemas. There is also a barbecue and picnic area in the housing estate. Life here can't be as exciting as life there.

5. Pair Work

What protects the people and things inside a house when it rains or the wind blows?

6. Group Work

Read the passage below before closing your books. Take turns acting as a worker. The others ask “the worker” questions on the text.

Do you work hard?

A house builder works as hard as a bee.

To start, he draws a picture of the new house. It is a house design.

Then workers dig a hole in the ground and build the bottom of the house. The bottom is called the foundation.

What is on top of the foundation? A frame holds up the walls and the roofs.

Behind the walls of a house there are many pipes. Some pipes carry clean and dirty water. Other pipes carry gas for the furnace or the stove. More pipes carry steam to the heater.

The roof and the windows on the outside of a house protect the people and the things on the inside. When it rains or the wind blows, people can sit inside a cozy house like a snail inside a shell.

7. Look back at the text. Find words that mean:

- (1) the base on which something is built _____
- (2) the lowest part of anything _____
- (3) a large enclosed fire used for producing hot water or steam _____
- (4) a hard main structure round which something is built or made _____

- (2) Do people need tables, chairs, desks and bookcases?
- (3) Why can lamps, radios, refrigerators and televisions work?

- (1) What makes a house comfortable? _____
- (2) Why are armchairs wider than people's bodies? _____
- (3) How high are the seats? Why? _____
- (4) Does electricity travel through pipes behind the walls? _____
- (5) Do people like big houses or small houses? _____

3. Read the text and check your answers to the questions above.

Some houses have a lot of furniture. Some have only a little. People need tables and chairs and rugs. Furniture makes a house comfortable. Armchairs are wider than people's bodies so they can sit down. The seats are half as high as people's legs so they can get up easily.

Lamps, radios and refrigerators all work by electricity. Electricity travels through wires behind the walls. Other wires carry voices to the telephone and clear pictures to the television set.

Some people like to have big houses. Other people like to have small houses. But people everywhere are happy with good homes. The world is big. A house is like a little part of the world of your own.

4. Which of the following is correct?

- a piece of furniture

- Presentation Find a picture of a house or a room where a famous person once lived. Describe the house or the room.
- Pair Work
 - Do you have a dream house? Would you add a home theatre in your house? Would you be happier with a spa, an indoor pool, or a pool table? Draw it down and compare yours with your partner's.
 - Design a scenic spot in your hometown. What does it look like? A pencil? A book? Anything else?
- Topic Discussion Do you like living in the city or in the suburbs? Why?
- Problem Solving Why do people in different areas live in different kinds of houses? Does it have anything to do with weather?
- Interview Interview your classmates or your parents. Ask them if they like the place they live in now. Why or why not? What are their ideal housing estates?

1. Do you know different types of house?

This is a very tall tower block of apartments called a skyscraper.

This house is made of wood. It stands on legs above the ground and is called a stilt house.

This house is made of mud or "adobe" so it is a mud house. It looks very square and has very small windows.

This house is made of blocks of ice. It has a round top and is called an igloo.

This house is usually in the country. It has a lot of land which is used as a farm for animals. It is called a ranch.

This is a small house in the forest made of pieces of wood called logs, so it is called a log cabin.

Some people do not live in houses but on boats. Their homes float on the water and they live in houseboats.

In the United Kingdom many houses are built in pairs (two houses joined together). These houses are called semi-detached.

This is a long house with only one storey. It does not have rooms upstairs. It is called a bungalow.

This is a very small, cosy house which is usually in a village. It is called a cottage. Cottages can be very old houses.

2. Learn homes for different animals.

There are many things we call a house
 Like small dark holes in the walls for the noisy mouse.
 Tall windy nests in the trees are what flying birds like the most,
 But dirty deep holes in the ground are cosy for rabbits and moles.
 Dogs and kittens sleep in soft pillows,
 And little spiders make webs in the corners of some windows.
 Crocodiles and snakes enjoy muddy swamps,
 But beavers prefer to build their own dams.
 Fish and whales live in the wet blue sea,
 And wood or brick buildings are houses for you and me.
 But what really matters is:
 To have a home where you can feel safe and free.

3. Moving customs in different countries

Most people in Western countries live in houses. A typical British house has a front garden and a back one. On the ground floor there is a sitting room, a dining room and a kitchen. On the first floor, there's a bathroom and one or more bedrooms. Sometimes there is an attic.

In Western countries, neighbours usually send cards to the family that will move in or move out. Some families will give a farewell party. The new comers will give a house-warming party in the new place in order to know the new neighbours.

In China, people in different areas have different customs. In some areas, people like playing firecrackers before they move into their new place; in other areas friends or relatives will give bamboos to those who will move. What other customs do you know? Why do people do so?

skirt and lei

4. Read the passage and answer the questions.

The traditional dress in Korea is called hanbok. The top part is a long shirt like a blouse. Women wear skirts and men wear baggy pants. Now people still wear them on some special days, such as weddings.

Women in India wear saris. This is a very long piece of cloth. Very often, women wear them like skirts with a top part over their shoulders or heads. Silk saris are only for important days.

Men and boys in Scotland wear a kind of skirt called kilt. Kilts don't have pockets, so people always hang a small heavy bag at the waist in the front. This heavy bag can stop the kilt from blowing up in the wind because traditionally Scotsmen don't wear anything under the kilts.

Hawaii is famous for its hula dancers. They wear grass skirts and wreaths of flowers called lei around their necks and heads. Sometimes dancers give their performances with bare feet.

- (1) Do Korean people wear the hanbok every day now? _____
- (2) How do women in India usually wear saris? _____
- (3) Do kilts have pockets? What do people hang at the waist then? _____
- (4) How do hula dancers sometimes give their performances? _____

- Linda: Tree frogs? I've never heard of them. What are they like?
- Dad: Tree frogs live on trees. They jump higher than the cats.
- Linda: Really?
- Dad: Yes. Tree frogs have long legs and wide feet.

- Student C: I'm afraid not, sir. I read in The Hundred-Thousand Whys that the elephant is the heaviest animal on the land. But there is another heavier animal in the sea. It is far heavier than the elephant. It is the whale, a huge fish.
- Teacher: Good boy. You are right. But the whale is not a fish. It's a mammal.

The water brings the animal air. The water brings the animal little plants and animals to feed on. What animal is it? It is the sponge!

The sponge is a water animal. Some sponges are found where the water is not very deep. Other sponges live on the floor of the sea. Sponges grow in many sizes, shapes, and colours.

Men dive for sponges. Animal sponges are needed for many things. But most sponges sold in the stores are not animals. They are made by man.

Jane Goodall is one of the most well-known scientists in the world. She spends most of her time studying wild chimpanzees in Africa.

It's not easy to watch chimpanzees. They are very shy and often run away. At first, Jane watches them from far away. Later she comes nearer to these animals, and learns more about their lives.

Chimps eat vegetables and fruit. They also feed on insects. They can even make tools to help them hunt insects. Mother chimpanzees give milk to their babies and give them lessons about life.

Jane Goodall becomes friends with many chimpanzees. She wants all of us to make a better world for chimpanzees and some other endangered animals.

- _____ (4) The cock ostrich attracts the hen only by fluffing out his feathers and fanning her.
- _____ (5) The cock and the hen ostriches take turns in hatching their eggs.

4. Read the passage and check your answers to the exercises above.

Some birds cannot fly; these birds run instead. Ostriches of Africa are an example.

Ostriches are the largest birds; they are often 8 feet tall, and weigh 300 pounds. Their long, strong legs have no feathers, and their necks and heads are covered with a fine down. The cock ostrich's body has beautiful black feathers, and his wings and tail are covered with handsome white feathers. The hens, which are slightly smaller, have grey-brown feathers.

Although they cannot fly, ostriches can run as fast as 30 miles an hour. They have only two toes on each foot—a large one on which they run, and a very small one that is almost useless. On each foot there is a strong claw as well. Ostriches usually run away from danger, but if one is cornered, it will kick with its powerful legs and slash its enemy with the sharp claws.

Ostriches now live only in Central Africa or on farms in South Africa. They are raised for their feathers. They live in groups of a dozen or more, and often move about with a herd of zebras or antelopes. They feed on insects, small lizards and mice, and leaves and seeds. In fact, they will swallow almost anything.

During the breeding season they separate into pairs, and the cock courts the hen by fluffing out his feathers, fanning her and making loud noises. Each pair makes a large bowl in the sand, and in this the hen lays a dozen or more white eggs. Each egg is nearly 8 inches long and weighs 3 pounds. The hen sits on the eggs during the day. Her brown feathers make her look much like a dried bush. So she is not at all easy to see in the brown grassland, especially when she lowers her head to the ground. This habit may have given people the idea that ostriches hide their heads in the sand where there is danger. At night the cock sits, for his black and white feathers look like shadows of the night.

The eggs take about 40 days to hatch, and the chicks, which are a foot high at first, grow a foot taller each month. They can soon run as fast as their parents.

In Western countries, people love animals very much. They think animals are just like human beings. Children have little animals as their friends, and old people keep pets as their companions. Almost everybody has a pet. They never eat animals like dogs and snakes. People in the West also like birds very much. They often feed them. People there leave some food in their yards for wild birds to get. Generally speaking, they have far more sense of environmental protection and animal rights.

In the West, there is an association called SPCA. It means the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The SPCA tries to keep animals from danger. They protect animals from some people and from accidents. The SPCA has special clinics for sick animals.

Steve Jobs' early life

1. 🎧 Skim the passage and put the events in order.

Steve Jobs was born on February 24, 1955, in San Francisco, California, and was adopted by Paul and Clara Jobs. He grew up with one sister, Patty. Paul Jobs was a machinist and he fixed cars as a hobby.

In 1961 the family moved to Mountain View, California. This area was becoming a centre for electronics. At that time people started to refer to the area as "Silicon Valley."

As a child, Jobs preferred to do things by himself. He liked swimming, but was not interested in team sports or other group activities. He showed an early interest in electronics and gadgetry. He spent a lot of time working in a neighbour's garage workshop.

Jobs also enrolled in the Hewlett-Packard Explorer Club. There he saw engineers demonstrate new products, and he saw his first computer at the age of twelve. He was very impressed, and knew right away that he wanted to work with computers.

While in high school Jobs attended lectures at the Hewlett-Packard plant. On one occasion he boldly asked William Hewlett (1931–2001), the president, for some parts he needed to complete a class project. Americans often have large social gatherings. They may be called “potlucks” or “coffee hours” or “open house”. You may be asked to bring a dish of food. It is common to arrive ten minutes to fifteen minutes late and leave half an hour before it is scheduled to end. You should stay at least half an hour. On these occasions you should talk for a few minutes to one person, and then move on to talk to another one. It is a good idea to have several questions in mind to ask people you meet. It is polite to talk about your work, your country, your trip to America and what you like about America, but not in detail. Do not ask Americans how old they are, how much money their house or other possessions cost or whether they are married. Questions about adults’ age and money are considered rude.

If someone brings you to the party or introduces you to people at the beginning or if there is a host, you should return to that person just before you leave and thank him or her.

David's story

1.  Read David's story and then put ticks(✓) in the chart below.

My name's David. I started school when I was five years old. I enjoyed my time at primary school. I made lots of new friends and learnt to read and write and do arithmetic.

But when I was eleven my family moved to another part of the city and I had to leave all my friends who went to a different secondary school. It was scary being in a new school with hundreds of older and bigger children I didn't know. But my new class teacher, Mrs Green, was wonderful — She really helped me feel more secure in my new environment. And she made us all work really hard too!

After working hard for the first year with Mrs Green's encouragement, I felt I didn't need to do so much work, so I didn't make much effort in any classes, because I found everything quite easy. I know this was stupid but none of the teachers pushed me to do better so I just did the minimum amount of work necessary.

When I took my GCSEs at the age of sixteen my grades were really poor. That taught me a good lesson and since then I haven't been so lazy!

Now I'm studying history at university.

When Americans go to work

Most Americans commute to work. They can take a bus or drive themselves. For many Americans the commute is no more than half an hour. Some Americans, however, have to drive for two or three hours every morning and every night! People generally decide where to live because the schools are good, because the air is clean, or just because they can afford to live there.

In San Francisco, people can commute by car, by bus, by bicycle, by streetcar, by train, or even by boat!

How are you going? Are you going by boat?

What's the quickest way to get there?

Where's your brother planning to go tomorrow?

- (5) How do you understand the last sentence in the passage? _____

2. Read the passage and check your answers.

Danny has a hobby — playing games online. He likes to visit alien worlds. He is interested in solving puzzles. He particularly enjoys chatting to other gamers.

Danny is sitting quietly in front of his computer. His mother thinks he is doing his homework but she is wrong. Danny is actually visiting alien worlds, solving puzzles and “chatting” to other gamers around the world. Danny’s hobby is playing games on the Internet.

Why are games online so interesting? “Because I can pretend to be a different person. There are also many different kinds of games for me to play,” says Danny. “Other people love to play these games because they can play at any time. They do not need to organize a group. Someone in the world always wants to play.”

Starting a game online is not easy. Some gamers do not welcome new gamers. They become annoyed when new gamers ask them questions. Other gamers are helpful. They want to make new friends. When Danny has a problem, he always says, “Excuse me, are you busy? I am new at this game and I have a question.” Sometimes this works. At other times, however, the gamer at the other end makes you feel like an idiot.

6 DIY Lab

4. Problem Solving A group of six foreign students are coming to your city on an exchange programme. You will plan their schedule for three days.

With a partner, decide where you want to take them, and when. Remember to think about when restaurants, stores, clubs, and the tourist sights open and close. Also, think about locations. Only public transportation is available.

Here is some information to help you plan.

There are three male and three female students.

They are all between 12 and 15 years of age.

They are all staying in a school's dormitory.

They get breakfast at the dorm, but not lunch or dinner.

They need some free time.

Start like this: "Let's think of as many places as we can. Then we can choose some and arrange a schedule."

Day one	Day two	Day three

7 CULTURE CORNER

Western students believe in the "work hard and play hard" philosophy, so they work very hard during weekdays, Monday through Friday, but at weekends most of them have a wild time enjoying themselves.

There is a great variety of entertainment and recreation: birthday parties, informal dances, formal dances, movies, theatres, concerts and sports events, etc. Students also join all kinds of clubs, associations and teams according to their individual hobbies. Clubs are groups of people with the same interests. There are many clubs for sports and music.

What kind of club do people in your country join? Are you a member of any club?

1. Quick wits.

What is the end of everything?
 What's the hardest thing about learning to ride a bike?
 What is the longest word in the English language?
 What is the same size as a man but weighs nothing?
 What kind of dog would a person bite?
 What kind of ship never sinks?

2. 🎧 Rhyme.

He likes singing,
 She likes dancing.
 We love music,
 We really love music.
 Fun! Fun! Fun!
 He enjoys running,
 She enjoys swimming.
 We love sports,
 We really love sports.

Go! Go! Go!
 We love playing,
 We really love playing.
 We won't forget working,
 We really enjoy working.
 Play and work,
 Work and play.
 We love both,
 We love both!

3. 🎧 Song.

Happy birthday to you

Happy birthday to you!
 Happy birthday to you!
 Happy birthday, dear Mary!
 Happy birthday to you!
 How old are you?
 How old are you?
 Oh tell us, please, Mary,
 How old are you?

 fruit and vegetables.
 A: Oh, I see. I must change my eating habits.

Item 1

Grandma knows best

1.  Read the passage and match the words with the proper definitions.

When people have a cold, they usually see a doctor or they get some medicine from a drugstore. But many people also use home remedies.

Lots of people eat hot chicken soup when they have a cold. They find it clears the head and the nose. Some people rub oil on the chest for a cold. Other people drink a mixture of red pepper, hot water, sugar, lemon juice, and milk or vinegar. Here are some simple home remedies.

Coughs: Drink some water with a teaspoon of baking soda in it.

Insomnia: Drink a large glass of warm milk.

Burns: Put the burn under cold water or put a cold handkerchief on it. But don't put ice on the burn.

drugstore	the condition of being unable to sleep
medicine	something used to treat disease
remedy	something made by mixing
mixture	a cure for a disease
insomnia	pharmacy

2. Cover the passage. Circle true (T) or false (F).

- | | | |
|---------------------------------------|---|---|
| (a) Hot fish soup is good for a cold. | T | F |
| (b) Ice is good for a burn. | T | F |
| (c) Honey helps a cough. | T | F |
| (d) Warm milk helps you go to sleep. | T | F |

3. Read the first paragraph. What are the three ways of getting medical care?

- (1) _____
 (2) _____
 (3) _____

4. Read the second paragraph. How does grandma cure a cold? Find out three ways.

- (1) _____
 (2) _____
 (3) _____

5. Group Work What home remedies do you use? Do your parents use the same remedies? Have a discussion in your group. A representative gives a presentation to the class.

Item 2

How to take aspirin

1.  Read the passage and choose the correct answer to each question.

- (1) How much medicine should adults and children over 12 years take each time?
 A. 8 tablets.
 B. 1 or 2 tablets.
 C. 3 tablets.
- (2) How many times can you take the medicine in 24 hours?
 A. 8 times.
 B. 6 times.
 C. 3 times.
- (3) What kind of patient can take this medicine?
 A. Adults.
 B. Only children over 12 years old.
 C. Adults and children.

2. Look up the following words in a dictionary and give each of them a definition.

- (1) dosage
- (2) caution
- (3) warning
- (4) physician
- (5) accidental
- (6) overdose

3. Use these words to complete the sentences below.

dosage caution warning physician accidental overdose contact immediately

- (1) If you take too many aspirin tablets, you have taken an _____.
- (2) Another word for doctor is _____.
- (3) The _____ is the amount of medicine to take.
- (4) When you do something right away, you do it _____.
- (5) Words that tell you to be careful are _____ and _____.

4. Role Play Suppose student A is a doctor, and student B is a patient. The doctor tells the patient how to take the medicine.

 Item 3

Do some exercise

1.  Read the passage and do the exercise.

Everyone needs to do a certain amount of exercise in order to keep fit. A little exercise regularly is better than a lot now and then. You needn't and in fact, mustn't, "overdo" it.

When you get up in the morning, stretch and breathe deeply. Then bend down and touch your toes (legs straight) twenty times. Try to get used to walking upstairs instead of using a lift. Climbing a flight of stairs every day is better for you, in the long run, than running round the block three times a week. So you needn't feel breathless and exhausted when you exercise — and you shouldn't.

Find the words that mean:

at equal intervals _____

do too much _____ very tired _____

push your arms or legs stiffly away _____

unable to breathe easily _____

2. Read the passage again and complete the sentences with one of the following phrases.

now and then in order to get used to in fact in the long run instead of

- (1) You will soon _____ it.
- (2) No one believed it, but _____, Mary got an A on her book report.
- (3) We go to school _____ learn.
- (4) You may make good grades by studying only before examinations, but you will succeed _____ only by studying hard every day.
- (5) I will go _____ you.
- (6) _____ we go to the cinema.

3. Give your partner some advice on keeping fit.

- (1) do some exercise
- (2) do not overdo it

4. Say something about walking upstairs instead of using a lift.

 Brush them every night until they're bright

 And that's clean!
 And that's it!
 And then you spit!
